Introduction and special features

Linguistics concerns the study of language from a broad range of perspectives, including the way speech is articulated, how language is structured and related to meaning, and how it relates to speakers' intentions and purposes in social interaction. As well as studying how speakers and writers use language and how it is acquired, processed and used in communicative contexts, linguists also study social attitudes to language, and the way language functions to express identities and cultural values. New forms of communication, such as email, texting and instant messaging, have opened up new and interesting fields for the study of language as a form of social behaviour. The English Language and Linguistics programme at York St John is distinctive in its focus on real-world applications for language study. Often taking a workshop approach, we offer you ways to apply theoretical knowledge to real data, and show how linguistic concepts and issues have vocational relevance in the working world. Graduates of the programme go on to careers in many varied fields where language use is of paramount importance – for example, teaching, speech and language therapy, journalism, marketing and PR, publishing, management and administration – as well as to do postgraduate research. Research, ICT, information and academic literacy skills are embedded in modules throughout the programme, enabling you to acquire, develop and apply skills valuable for future workplace contexts.

¹ The standard period of study will apply unless otherwise stated

Special features

The programme features a fortnightly Colloquium Series during term time, to which we invite guest lecturers who are working on research of relevance to modules being offered in the current semester, and ask them to prepare their talks for an audience composed primarily of students. This provides you with the opportunity to hear about research issues and methods from specialists, including members of our own team, whose work you will be reading about in class.

The programme is supported by a specialist Linguistics Lab, where you can analyse speech using digital software, and by the creative use of web-based teaching and learning spaces, including a dedicated programme website. The programme aims to provide you with the tools required to apply linguistic theory to real world language in use. This is achieved by the careful scaffolding of student learning through beginning to study carefully selected or constructed examples of language in the first year of study, and increasing exposure to real language in the second and third year.

Another distinctive feature of this programme is the opportunity to apply to take the Cambridge English Certificate in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (CELTA) at no additional cost. This means that, in addition to knowledge about language, the acquisition of English and the use of English in global and multilingual contexts, successful applicants will also have the opportunity to acquire valuable practical teaching experience and graduate with an internationally recognised teaching qualification. Places will be awarded subject to a successful application and interview process.

Admissions criteria

In addition to the university's general entry criteria for undergraduate study, you must have:

- Programme academic requirements – these will be met by the achievement of appropriate grades in Level 6 qualifications and GCSE Level examinations. For full details of the tariff offer, please see

<https://www.yorks.ac.uk/study/undergraduate/courses/languages--linguistics/english-language--linguistics-ba-hons/english-language--linguistics-.html#section-entry-requirements>

If your first language is not English, you need to take an IELTS test or an equivalent qualification accepted by the University (see <https://www.yorks.ac.uk/international/how-to-apply/english-language-requirements/>).

If you do not have traditional qualifications, you may be eligible for entry on the basis of Accredited Prior \(Experiential\) Learning \(APL/APEL\). We also consider applications for entry with advanced standing.

Programme aims

The programme aims to:

1. Enable you to become an independent and ethical (applied) linguist, able to work for social justice in changing global contexts
2. Enable you to be digitally literate and able to communicate professionally, drawing on sound evidence from linguistic theories and applied linguistics practice
3. Provide progressive opportunities for you to develop as a reflective and versatile learner
4. Foster in you a lasting interest and life-long enjoyment in the study of English Language and Linguistics
5. Provide you with the qualifications and skills to undertake further academic study and to compete successfully in a diverse employment market

Programme learning outcomes

Level 4

By the end of this level of study, you will be able to:

- 4.1 Handle, analyse and present data in an ethical way using appropriate digital tools
- 4.2 Recognise and explain socio-cultural, political, psychological, educational and/or historical contexts of language use
- 4.3 Describe and analyse grammatical structures of language using appropriate terminology
- 4.4 Describe and analyse the sounds of language using appropriate terminology
- 4.5 Source and interpret a range of academic literature to effectively communicate, adopting referencing conventions where appropriate

By the end of this level of study, you will be able to:

- 5.1 Critically analyse and present naturalistic and/ or experimental data in an ethical way
- 5.2 Identify and use appropriate theoretical frameworks
- 5.3 Investigate and interpret socio-cultural, political, psychological, educational and/ or historical contexts of language use
- 5.4 Communicate professionally, evidencing arguments through correctly referenced sources where appropriate
- 5.5 Demonstrate an awareness of professional values

Level 6

By the end of this level of study, you will be able to:

- 6.1 Design and carry out an independent research study, presenting and critically analysing data in an ethical way
- 6.2 Select and apply appropriate theoretical frameworks
- 6.3 Investigate and critically evaluate socio-cultural, political, psychological, educational and/ or historical contexts of language use
- 6.4 Appropriately adapt language to communicate professionally with a range of audiences both in writing and orally
- 6.5 Construct a convincing argument, evidenced by critical engagement with appropriate sources
- 6.6 Demonstrate professional and transferable skills

C: Compulsory, CA: Compulsory for award, O: option or E: elective.

Please note that not all options will be available every year as they depend on student demand and staff availability.

Exemptions for Study Abroad modules

If insufficient linguistics/TESOL or related modules are available in the host institution, the distance module 2LL320 World Englishes (Distance) (semester 1) or 2LL319 Sociolinguistics (Distance) (semester 2) can be taken instead.

Learning, teaching and assessment

Level 4

At level 4, you are introduced to a wide range of learning situations, including formal lectures, workshops, seminars, and tutorial support. You are also introduced to a range of assessment types, which are outlined below.

From your first weeks at university, you are engaged with information literacy, which is embedded in all level 4 modules. The delivery of these skills sessions is supported by the programme team, the Study Skills team and our Academic Liaison Librarian. These key colleagues contribute to a range of our modules, including the compulsory for award module 1LL300. You are also assigned an Academic Tutor, who will meet with you at least once each semester.

At level 4, we make use of 'small stakes' assessments, which are designed to engage you throughout the semester. For example, in 1LL303, you will complete a weekly online quiz which requires you to engage with the set reading. Assessment is varied, including a class test, online tests and postings, as well as oral presentations, essays, and data analysis tasks. Group oral presentations take place in both compulsory for award modules, as a way of ensuring that you are exposed to this crucial employability skill in a supported way from the start of your programme. In the first instance, this is a formative presentation, with the opportunity for you to receive feedback on and reflect upon your performance. There is an examination at the end of level 4, for 1LL303.

You are encouraged to use your fellow students as a resource, as well as benefitting from the expertise of staff. The programme website supports the culture of a learning community, and you are introduced, at the outset, to its functionality. Peer and self-assessment both feature in level 4 modules.

Choices at Level 4 are limited because of the need to provide a basic 'toolkit' for linguistic study, which will underpin study at level 5. We value language learning extremely highly, and recognise its potential for enabling you to apply your new linguistic skills to a language other than English. However, it is known that students are likely to come with different ideas and experiences of previous language learning. For this reason, there is some choice in Semester 2, with the opportunity to study a new language at beginners' level, continue to study an existing language at a higher level, or to take the Linguistics module, Multilingualism, 1LL305. Language module options vary on an annual basis according to staff availability and demand.

Level 5

At level 5, a range of learning situations is available to you across a number of modules. Some modules are entirely workshop based, while others continue the lecture/seminar approach. At this level, you will complete the compulsory module 'Language at Work' where you will be encouraged to consider the skills you have and how these could apply in the workplace.

Beyond the compulsory module, you can exercise choice across level 5, opting for those areas in which you see interest value and a fruitful knowledge base for your future development.

Work at level 5 is characterised by more contexts where you determine the direction of your work. This may be, for example, where tutors ask you to find your own data to analyse, or set up your own research direction within materials provided. Research skills are embedded within modules; for example, work on ethics, project design and argumentation skills as well as training in the use of specialist software in some modules. The presentation of your work is expected to be more professional, and your oral presentations more accomplished.

You may choose to apply for international exchange for one semester at level 5. Where you elect to study abroad in semester 2, you may take the distance version of our work experience module. In some cases, students are able to take up opportunities for work experience for academic credit, such as through the completion of the SMILE programme (teaching English in schools) available at one of our partner institutions in Spain.

Level 6

Skills and subject knowledge introduced at level 4 and enhanced at level 5 are consolidated at level 6. You are expected to be maximally self-reliant and to learn how to use your tutors as one resource among many. In terms of subject knowledge, you are expected to be able to see some of the limitations of theoretical approaches, while also using knowledge gained over the previous two years to problem-solve and critically evaluate different linguistic phenomena. Research skills are increasingly present in modules, corresponding to project work concerning both written and spoken data undertaken at level 6, for example in 3LL301 and 3LL300.

You will be supported in your dissertation by your supervisor, including in research skills where appropriate. You will also present your dissertation research to an audience as part of the assessment for this module. In 3LL308, you will also carry out the independent reflective portfolio, drawing on tutorial support to enable you to make connections between aspects of your undergraduate programme. You will receive tutorial support in developing research skills for dissertations and project work.

Level 6 offers you more career orientation through modules that have a direct application to a number of working contexts, for example, 3LL300 and 3LL302. There are additional opportunities for career development outside credit bearing modules. Digital and communication skills, as key graduate attributes, are focused on in the assessment strategies for 3LL308. You are encouraged to write academically strong pieces of work in an accessible way, as well as to reflect on your experience across the programme, drawing out for yourself the transferrable skills that you have developed.

Progression and graduation requirements

The University's general regulations for undergraduate awards apply to this programme.

Any modules that must be passed for progression or award are indicated in the Programme Structure section.
