Introduction and special features

The English Language, Linguistics and Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) programme offers you a unique opportunity to apply linguistic knowledge and related skills to the practical challenge of teaching English as a world language. You will study language from a broad range of perspectives, including the way speech is articulated, how language is structured and related to meaning, and how it relates to speakers' intentions and purposes in social interaction.

The programme features a fortnightly Colloquium Series during term time, to which we invite guest lecturers who are working on research of relevance to modules being offered in the current semester, and ask them to prepare their talks for an audience composed primarily of students. This provides you with the opportunity to hear about research issues and methods from specialists, including members of our own team, whose work you will be reading about in class. Another distinctive feature of this programme is the opportunity to apply to take the Cambridge English Certificate in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (CELTA) at no additional cost. This means that, in addition to knowledge about language, the acquisition of English and the use of English in global and multilingual contexts, successful applicants will also have the opportunity to acquire valuable practical teaching experience and graduate with an internationally recognised teaching qualification. Places will be awarded subject to a successful application and interview process.

Admissions criteria

You must meet the University's general entry criteria for undergraduate study. In addition, you must have: <https://www.yorksj.ac.uk/study/undergraduate/courses/languages--linguistics/linguistics--tesol-ba-hons/linguistics--tesol.html#section-entry-requirements>

If your first language is not English, you need to take an IELTS test or an equivalent qualification accepted by the University (see <https://www.yorksj.ac.uk/international/how-to-apply/english-language-requirements/>).

If you do not have traditional qualifications, you may be eligible for entry on the basis of Accredited Prior \(Experiential\) Learning \(APL/APEL\). We also consider applications for entry with advanced standing.

Learning, teaching and assessment

Level 4

At level 4, you are introduced to a wide range of learning situations, including formal lectures, workshops, seminars, and tutorial support. You are also introduced to a range of assessment types, which are outlined below.

From your first weeks at university, you are engaged with information literacy, which is embedded in all level 4 modules. The delivery of these skills sessions is supported by the programme team, the Study Skills team and our Academic Liaison Librarian. These key colleagues contribute to a range of our modules, including the compulsory for award module 1LL300. You are also assigned an Academic Tutor, who will meet with you at least once each semester.

At level 4, we make use of 'small stakes' assessments, which are designed to engage you throughout the semester. For example, in 1LL303, you will complete a weekly online quiz which requires you to engage with the set reading. Assessment is varied, including a class test, online tests and postings, as well as oral presentations, essays, and data analysis tasks. Group oral presentations take place in both compulsory for award modules, as a way of ensuring that you are exposed to this crucial employability skill in a supported way from the start of your programme. In the first instance, this is a formative presentation, with the opportunity for you to receive feedback on and reflect upon your performance. In 1LL306, students submit their assessment as an e-portfolio, and there is an examination at the end of level 4, for 1LL303.

You are encouraged to use your fellow students as a resource, as well as benefitting from the expertise of staff. The programme website supports the culture of a learning community, and you are introduced, at the outset, to its functionality. Peer and self-assessment both feature in level 4 modules.

Choices at Level 4 are limited because of the need to provide a basic 'toolkit' for applied linguistic study, which will underpin study at level 5. We value language learning extremely highly, and recognise its potential for enabling you to apply your new linguistic skills to a language other than English. For TESOL students learning a language presents an opportunity to be in the position of learner rather than teacher, helping you to reflect on the language learning process yourself. However, it is known that students are likely to come with different ideas and experiences of previous language learning. For this reason, there is some choice in Semester 2, with the opportunity to study a language or to take the Linguistics module, Phonetics, 1LL304.

Level 5

At level 5, a range of learning situations is available to you across a number of modules. Some modules are entirely workshop based, while others continue the lecture/seminar approach. At this level, you will complete the compulsory module 2LL306 where you will be encouraged to consider the skills you have and how these could apply in the workplace. Beyond the compulsory module, you can exercise choice across level 5, opting for those areas in which you see interest value and a fruitful knowledge base for your future development.

Work at level 5 is characterised by more contexts where you determine the direction of your work. This may be, for example, where tutors ask you to find your own data to analyse, or set up your own research direction within materials provided. Research skills are embedded within modules; for example, work on ethics, project design and argumentation skills as well as training in the use of specialist software in some modules. The presentation of your work is expected to be more professional, and your oral presentations more accomplished.

At level 5, you may choose to study abroad for one semester. Although study abroad is not compulsory, it is expected to be very popular, given the opportunities for English language teaching assistantships and tutoring. Where you elect to study abroad in semester 2, you may take the distance version of our work experience module.

Level 6

Skills and subject knowledge introduced at level 4 and enhanced at level 5 are consolidated at level 6. You are expected to be maximally self-reliant and to learn how to use your tutors as one resource among many. In terms of subject knowledge, you are expected to be able to see some of the limitations of theoretical approaches, while also using knowledge gained over the previous two years to problem-solve and critically evaluate different linguistic phenomena. Research skills are increasingly present in modules, corresponding to project work concerning both written and spoken data undertaken at level 6, for example in 3LL301, 3LL304, and 3LL302.

You will be supported in your dissertation by your supervisor, including in research skills where appropriate. You will also present your dissertation research to an audience as part of the assessment for this module. In 3LL208, you will also carry out the independent reflective portfolio, drawing on tutorial support to enable you to make connections between aspects of your undergraduate programme. You will receive tutorial support in developing research skills for dissertations and project work.

Level 6 offers you more career orientation through modules that have a direct application to a number of working contexts, for example, 3LL300 and 3LL302. There are additional opportunities for career development outside credit bearing modules. Digital and communication skills, as key graduate attributes, are focused on in the assessment strategies for Reflections in Linguistics. You are encouraged to write academically strong pieces of work in an accessible way, as well as to reflect on your experience across the programme, drawing out for yourself the transferrable skills that you have developed.
