Introduction and special features

If you aspire to engage your community and the world through media, research and creative input then this is the Media and Communication degree for you.

The Media and Communication programme is a progressive degree which is up to date with recent developments in the discipline. Key aspects of the programme are:

- An exploration of the 'de-colonialization' of Media Studies which offers views of the media in a global context.
- A commitment to exploring power relationships in contemporary media; the ways in which media are central to some of the burning social and ideological issues of our time (e.g. environmental sustainability, globalisation, perspectives of national identity).
- A creative and analytical immersion with technologies, project management and communication skills, resulting in opportunities for you to raise your profile as an employable graduate in the media and creative industries.
- A critical investigation into the profound impact digital culture is having upon the world, and in turn individual, social and (inter)national identities.

¹ The standard period of study will apply unless otherwise stated

A number of exciting initiatives you will experience include:

1. The integration of our Neutral project as an e-publication driven by the talent and dedication of our students. Here is our latest edition: <http://neutralmagazine.com/>
2. A vibrant schedule of excursions, field trips and events which allow you to explore media cultures on a local, national and international level (including an international excursion that is subsidised by the Programme and none of the other excursion are of any additional cost to students).
3. A healthy roster of visiting speakers, industry experts and academics who will enrich the discourse of the programme and provide you with a practical insight into media in a commercial and creative context.
4. Dedicated mentoring across levels from professional designers (including our own programme dedicated member of staff) and experts who will help you to develop your technical ability and creative capacities.

We will help cultivate your skills to help enhance your future chances of employment both in modules, across the curriculum and by inclusion of the extra-curricula schedule.

Admissions criteria

You must meet the minimum entry requirements which are published on the programme specific webpage.

If your first language is not English, you need to take an IELTS test or an equivalent qualification accepted by the University (see <https://www.yorks.ac.uk/international/how-to-apply/english-language-requirements/>).

If you do not have traditional qualifications, you may be eligible for entry on the basis of Recognition of prior learning \(RPL\). We also consider applications for entry with advanced standing.

Programme aim(s)

1. To encourage students to develop an informed and critical understanding of key themes and debates within Media and Communications.
2. To enhance students' development as independent learners and media scholars
3. To support students in developing a range of transferable skills to equip them for employment and lifelong learning
4. To develop an ability to reflect critically on the process of researching, writing, analysing, and forming an academic argument
5. To provide a supportive learning environment that meets the needs of a diverse set of learners
6. To enhance students' development of appropriate skills in communication, analysis, collaboration, research, and self-management

Learning, teaching and assessment

Throughout the BA (Hons) Media and Communication programme, your learning will be structured so that your knowledge and skills are continually developed across the three levels of study. This will allow you to not only learn to engage with a number of dialogues and practices, but also develop a skillset that will be of use in further endeavours and careers. You will take part in lectures, seminars, workshops, task focused activities, field trips and excursions and informative engagement with media practitioners and creatives.

At times a module might involve you working during a Semester with lecturers in one capacity and then with a designer in another to produce a creative and critical portfolio. At other times, you will work in seminars and then visit places (e.g. art galleries) and events (such as a short film festival) to see and reflect upon media in action.

This is enhanced by three distinct features:

- Research informed teaching where experts in their subjects will work with you and develop your knowledge
- A schedule of tutorial support where you will gain advice and guidance on how to progress academically
- Technology enhanced programme instruction from experts that will help you to learn how to use media as a critical and creative tool

You will be assessed in a variety of ways including essays, portfolios, single and group presentations (for example, voice-over commentaries using iPads and tablets), interactive e-portfolios (using platforms such as Word Press), creative visual pieces. All of these will be introduced at Level 4 and then developed throughout the degree.
